

At Falls, our mission is to get people to listen, care and act. How do we do that? Take a look at just a few examples.

OUR ADDRESS SUPPORTS DOMESTICALLY PRODUCED VALUES.

"Domestic, to me, means retail and shopping," said Dredgers' Union co-owner Danielle Deeder. "What is not about parties? But talk for other events to come back downtown and be a part of the special thing that is happening!"

To some, designing, producing, and selling and selling a product in the same region is a foreign concept. For Danielle Deeder and Sean Bilgucky, co-owners of the Dredgers Union, supporting domestically produced is a way of life.

The Dredgers Union is a lifestyle store with a wide variety of men's and women's apparel, home goods, toys for the kids and just about everything in between.

With a 4,000 square foot of retail space on street level and another 4,000 square foot of event space and design studio, Dredgers' Union has made its mark in the heart of downtown Cleveland's E. 9th Street neighborhood.

Featuring its own domestically produced private label of apparel and home goods, the Dredgers Union also has visitors take a piece of Cleveland home with them.

"Cleveland is a warm, open city," said Bilgucky. "It's been a great experience and has a lot of energy to it. It's brought us to the best working conditions, traditional customer and people power. Further, Dredgers' Union is the best platform to bring our ideas to the masses."
